Fireside Chat with Prof Christine Loh, Honorary Advisor of HKIQEP

Hosted by Dr Jeanne Ng, Chairman of HKIQEP

Joined by Co-Chairs of HKWPEA Sustainability Committee

On 22 September 2020, President Xi Jinping announced at the United Nations General Assembly address that China aims to have CO2 emissions peak before 2030 and achieve carbon neutrality by 2060. The Council for Sustainable Development conducted a territory-wide public engagement on long-term decarbonization strategy for Hong Kong last year. However, there is yet to be announced a detailed plan for transition towards a low carbon society by 2050.

In this fireside chat, we'll explore what the 2060 carbon neutrality goal pledged by China means for us. We shall also share insights into Hong Kong's decarbonization roadmap and other environmental related issues.
